

Description:

This simple setup allows the audio from a computer or other audio source to be shared with the audio system in another room. In this example the audio is fed from the computer into a wall plate that is wired directly to a wall plate in the second room. The two wall plates are connected with two balanced shielded audio cables. These wall plates are available in RDL's grey/white color or in stainless steel. Custom labeling is available.